

Helping Students Start Researching

If your students are struggling to get started researching their big question for a SOLE, establishing key words beforehand can help reduce time spent looking for good resources online.

- Introduce the SOLE question as a whole class and remind students that they don't need to copy & paste the entire question when researching.
- Ask the students if they can think of some key phrases or words that come to mind when considering the question before they start researching.
- If necessary, provide some key words of your own to help complete the list.
- Post the list of keywords on the board or in another clearly visible place for students while they work.
